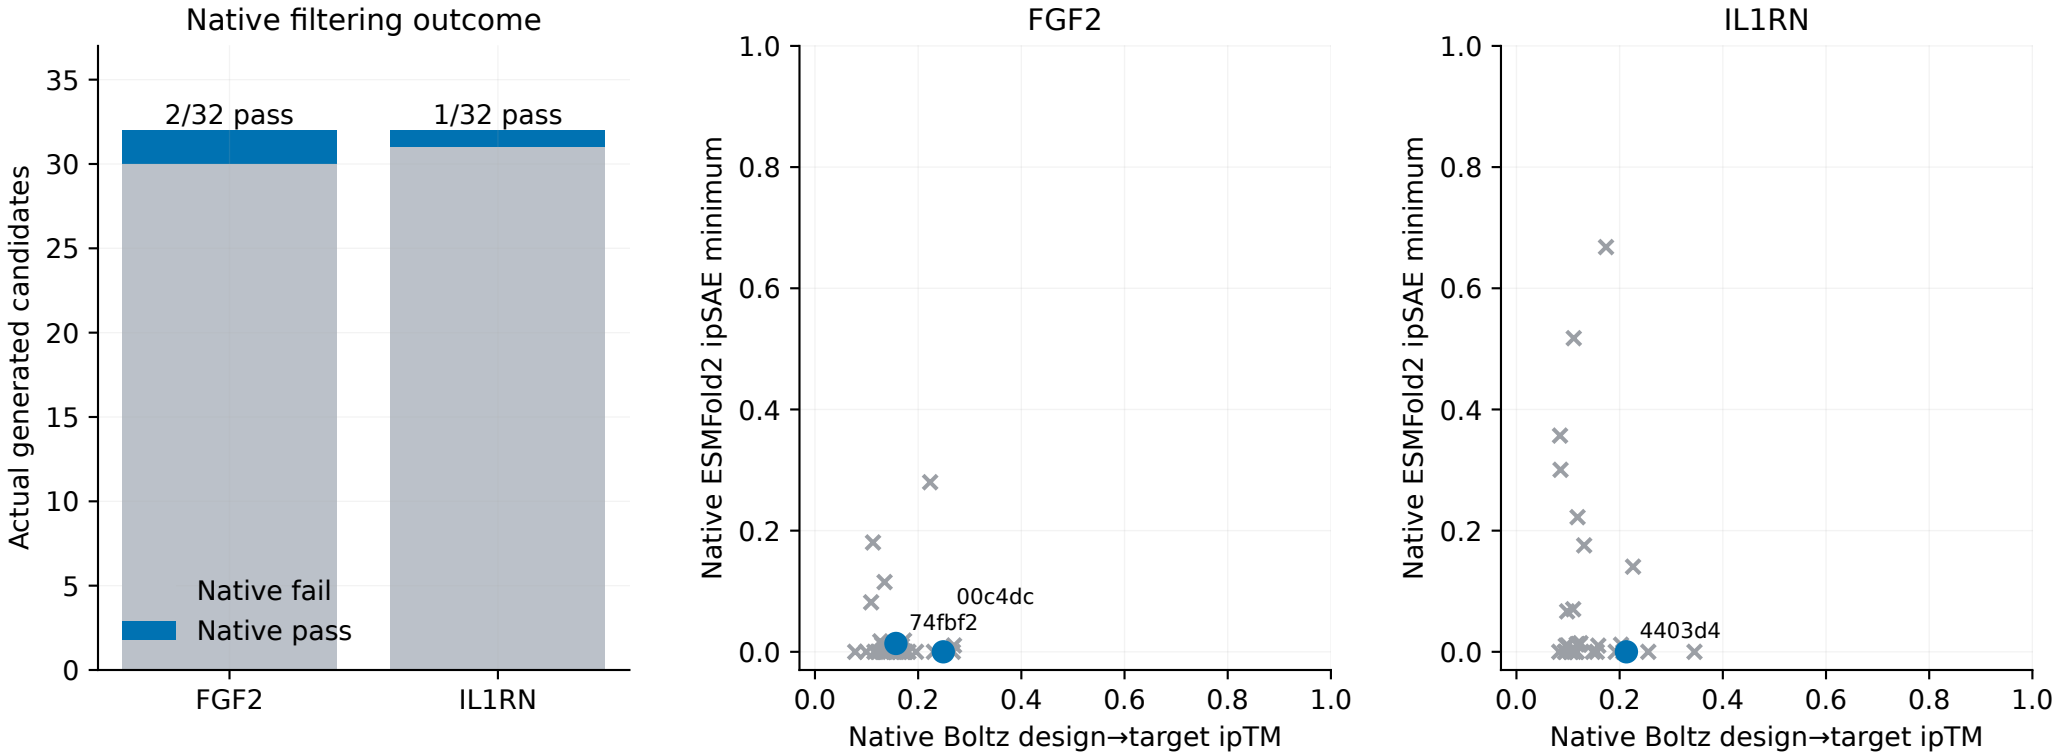
Native design filters and confidence are different measures



Native pass checks structural recovery and composition; it does NOT require high interface confidence.
The two native model scores are distinct metrics. Neither native pass nor either score establishes experimental binding.